NATIONAL VOLUNTEERING WEEK

“ India with its demographics especially the strength of its youth needs to have a backbone infrastructure for Volunteerism to channelize their energies. India@75 has been consistently working towards creation of a conducive eco-system for structured volunteerism, National Volunteering Week (NVW) is one such effort to reach out and mobilize stakeholders and other citizens to converge. NVW has been a successful medium to showcase the selfless work being done by numerous faceless people who are making a difference and contributing towards building an equitable society and for others to follow. I would urge all Indians to participate in NVW and contribute as per their individual capacities

VOLUNTEERS SPEAK

Day 4
20
January
2018

I'm associated with Sukalyan India since my college days. I enjoy working with this organization and privileged to be a part of National Volunteering Week 2018 which provides a platform for everyone like me to give back to the society with skills, time and passion of social work. My team and I at Sukalyan pledge our support to the #IforIndia movement and will urge other employees and friends as well to volunteer for achieving the vision of India in 2022.

It's great to include Road Traffic safety projects during the India@75 National Volunteering Week celebration. We are organizing these campaigns in association with www.webridge.online. Many people lose their lives daily due to negligence of traffic rules and hence it is our duty to make them aware of the same and ensure that they follow these rules.

The Enactus Club of Shaheed Bhagat Singh Evening College visited the slum areas of Munirka and conducted a productive discussion on numerous topics related to their surroundings, garbage disposal methods, washroom facilities and feminine hygiene.

At Adarsh Senior Secondary School, Jhajjar, Shaheed Sukhdev College of Business Studies organized a career counselling session and some fun activities for the children under Project Udaan. They were also informed about the vital role that computers play in our lives using videos and personalized interactions.

Nirbhed Foundation organized a clothes distribution drive in Ghaziabad, to help the poor so that they can keep themselves warm in winters.
