NATIONAL VOLUNTEERING WEEK

“Caring for others less fortunate in our society, preserving and nurturing our environment, promoting literacy and human rights - to engage mass participation in such altruistic causes, voluntary action is the only sensible way. On the occasion of the India@75 National Volunteering Week I urge one and all to step out of their worlds within and share the goodness in their hearts with the world at large.”

It is a great experience working for unprivileged people and children . Volunteer work has broadened my experience and exposure to life, an opportunity that I don't get at work. It gives me a great level of satisfaction working for others. I have participated in two activities today- Free Medical check-up and Health awareness campaign and Banking and Financial Awareness.

People in the slums are still unaware of many health related problems, especially the women who do not easily visit a doctor. We invited a Lady Doctor to resolve their issues. It was an eye opening scenario for me.

Sushil Kumar Meena,
Nirbhed Foundation, Ghaziabad

For me, volunteer work is one of the most rewarding, fulfilling and formative experiences a person of any age can have. I enjoyed a lot during the NVW activities. I participated in Education, Digital Literacy, Banking and Financial Awareness activities. I am a Manager in a Nationalized Bank and I was surprised to know that in spite of various Govt. campaigns and schemes, still around 95% of slum area people don't have a Bank Account. They don't know the benefits of Banking. We have motivated them to open a Bank Account and assured them that we will make them learn basic banking process such as cash deposit and cash withdrawal through ATM.

Nirbhed Foundation

Young Indians, Jaipur chapter organized the 'Masoom: Run against Child Abuse' marathon at St Anselm's Pink City School, Jaipur. It was a 3 km run with participation from school students, teachers and management among others to spread awareness on child abuse.

A 'Muffin Decorating Competition' was organized for the children of the laborers working in Deshbandhu College's premises. On completion, the children happily ate the muffins with a priceless smile on their faces.

In order to fight the taboo around menstruation, the volunteers from Sri Venkateswara College conducted informative sessions on the use of sanitary napkins, hygiene and maintenance related to menstruation amongst women. A skit portraying the taboos that women face was also showcased followed by explaining a balanced diet plan that women should follow to keep themselves fit.

Students of Dr. SSBUICET, Punjab University delivered a lecture on AIDS awareness and precautionary measures in village Khuda Lahora in Chandigarh. Symptoms, sources, prevention methods along with various misconceptions regarding this disease were discussed.

The team of Shaheed Bhagat Singh Evening College distributed 200 sanitary napkins for free in the slum area of Hauz Rani and Begumpur and raised awareness about the issue of menstrual hygiene. They received an overwhelming response, therefore they have ordered 500 more sanitary napkins for the upcoming days of the campaign.

An awareness campaign on the importance of education for children was conducted in Mangolpuri area by Sahyog Care for You

For a carefree childhood, Sahyog Care for You conducted an engaging session with the children of Mangolpuri, SultanPuri and Sirmour District of Himachal Pradesh on Prevention of Child Sexual Abuse in schools and communities.

A successful clothes distribution drive took place in Sultanpuri with the help of Sahyog Care for You, where almost 95 children and 45 ladies received clothes to keep themselves warm in this hard hitting winter season.

There is a saying that if a woman gets educated, the whole generation gets educated. Working on this thought, Sahyog Care for You organised a counselling session in Nangloi where discussion took place about the importance of educating women.
